

As a member of a small, growing radio company, I hope that the commissioners will vote NOT to relax media ownership rules. Such a change would undoubtedly have an adverse effect on the free flow of information upon which a democracy depends. The vast majority of comment on this issue seems to be of this sentiment, and ALL arguments I have heard in favor of relaxation have been patently specious (and all seem to come from people who own large media companies.) The commission should respect the will of the American people, and not allow these changes.
